The Harrison Nuts and Bolts building is located adjacent to the south side of the east abutment of the Wilkens Avenue Bridge and is accessed by a gravel driveway that also serves several light industrial sites along the east side of the Gwynns Falls. The building is flanked by Franklinton Road to the east and the Ellicott Driveway to the west. The L-shaped, one-story building is a flat-roofed, former warehouse with a painted, concrete block exterior. A portion of the east façade has a brick veneer, and a small canopy is located over the main entrance door. Overhead doors are located along the east side of the south leg. All windows are steel casement type.

The south leg is raised above grade to provide loading docks. A concrete platform is located at the south end of the building. The south leg of the building has wood roof decking supported on wood beams. The wood beams are supported by steel girders on steel columns and an exterior bearing wall. The east leg of the building has a corrugated steel roof decking supported by open web steel joists. The joists rest on steel pipe columns and exterior bearing walls. The floor is concrete. The east leg has severely deteriorated 2 X 4 grid ceilings and drywall partitions.

The warehouse abuts the property for the new hiker/biker trail, and is located in a formerly commercial, now abandoned and overgrown area. The building is in an advanced state of deterioration.

Harrison Nuts and Bolts is part of 20th-century commercial growth trends, however, it not a significant example of such trends. Therefore, it is not eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion A.

Continuation Sheet No. 1

B-5063

Harrison Nuts and Bolts is not eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion B because it is not known to be associated with the lives of persons significant in the local, state, or national past.

Harrison Nuts and Bolts is not eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion C because it is in an advance state of deterioration and does not embody distinctive characteristics of a particular architectural style.

Finally, the Harrison Nuts and Bolts environs are unlikely to yield new information in terms of archaeological study of the area and therefore, in not eligible for listing in the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion D.
